Frederick J. LeBlanc has worked as a professional photojournalist for over twenty-five years. His commercial and editorial images have appeared regularly in regional and national publications. His life long passion for classic wooden sailing vessels has led him, over the last decade, to document these historic windjammers as they sail, in harmony with the wind and sea.

Viewing himself as a photojournalistic storyteller, he uses his fine art prints, to bring to the public a greater awareness and appreciation of our maritime heritage.

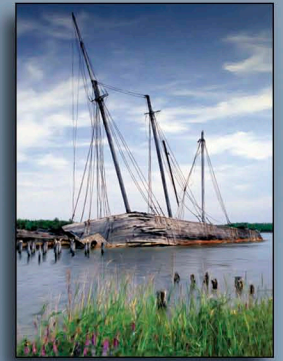

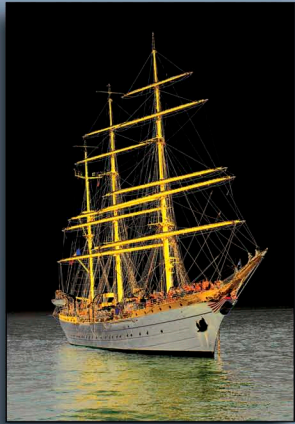

Through his collection of photographs and impressionist paintings he hopes to recall a vanishing era when the waves were broken only by the power of the wind, to capture the majestic beauty of these historic tall ships and to offer a visual escape that evokes a longing for the sea.

MARITIME ART

“ Whenever I find myself growing grim about the mouth; whenever it is a damp, drizzly November in my soul. . . then, I account it high time to get to sea as soon as I can “

Moby Dick, Herman Melville
